

ABSTRACT

An elevator supervisory system capable of managing abnormality data, operating condition data and car interior video data in association with one another, so that this data can be displayed in association with one another upon the occurrence of an abnormality.